‘On The Same Page’ Announces Title for 2014 One-book Program
Pandora’s Lunchbox: How Processed Food Took Over the American Meal
by Melanie Warner

Lafayette, Louisville & Superior Unite for the 4th Annual Community Reading Event

LOUISVILLE, CO — June 26, 2014 — On Saturday morning, June 21, at Louisville’s farmers market in downtown Louisville, Pandora’s Lunchbox: How Processed Food Took Over the American Meal was revealed by Louisville Library Director Beth Barrett as the title for the 4th annual ‘On The Same Page’ (OTSP) community one-book program. The title was also announced by Lafayette Library Director Betsy Stroomer at Lafayette’s farmers market on Sunday, June 22.

This year’s title, by local author and former NYTimes reporter Melanie Warner, is an eye-opening look into what we eat nowadays and the possible consequences for all of us of doing so. As noted on the publisher’s website, “Combining meticulous research, vivid writing, and cultural analysis, Warner blows the lid off the largely undocumented—and lightly regulated—world of chemically treated and processed foods and lays bare the potential price we may pay for consuming even so-called healthy foods.”

With funds donated by the Lafayette and Louisville library foundations and the Town of Superior, the Lafayette and Louisville libraries have purchased more than 100 paperback copies of the books. Book club sets with multiple copies of the title are also available through both libraries. Beginning in September, ‘On The Same Page’ will offer book discussions and a variety of programs that echo the themes in this year’s title, such as a presentation September 10 on the Human Microbiome project by Dr. Rob Knight of CU Boulder and culminating on October 16 at the new Alfalfa’s store in Louisville with an author visit and book talk.
